

coalition theory network

24th Conference

Date: 16-05-19 to 17-05-19

City: Aix-en-Provence

Country: France

Event format: Conference

Aix-Marseille School of Economics (AMSE) is happy to host the 24th Coalition Theory Network Conference on Thursday 16th–Friday 17th May 2019 at Aix-Marseille University, France.

The Coalition Theory Network (CTN) is an association of 9 high-level scientific institutions whose aim is the advancement and diffusion of research in the area of network theory and coalition formation.

The conference will be mainly devoted to the theoretical and empirical analysis of networks and groups. This pertains to different aspects of social economics systems, such as the management of international public goods, the formation of industrial cartels and collaborations, the patterns of racial integration in social networks, information transmission and incentives, the structure and properties of informal safety nets.

The keynote speakers will be:

Prof. Matthew O. Jackson, Stanford University, USA.

Prof. Asuman Ozdaglar, MIT, USA.

Prof. Adam Szeidl, Central European University, Hungary.

Submissions

Papers or extended abstracts in pdf format can be submitted using the submission form available at <http://ctn2019.sciencesconf.org>. Please include abstract and keywords in your submission. PhD students' applications are particularly welcome.

Deadline for application is 15/02/2019. Late applications will not be considered.

All acceptance/rejection decisions will be communicated by 01/03/2019.

Scientific committee

It is composed by the CTN Scientific Board representatives:

- Prof. Anna Bogomolnaia, University of Glasgow, UK
- Prof. Yann Bramoullé, Aix-Marseille University and CNRS, France
- Prof. Carlo Carraro, Ca' Foscari University of Venice, Italy
- Dr. Dominik Karos, Maastricht University, The Netherlands
- Prof. Pau Milán, Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona, Spain
- Prof. Agnieszka Rusinowska, University of Paris 1 and CNRS, France
- Prof. Vincent Vannetelbosch, Université Catholique de Louvain, Belgium
- Prof. Shlomo Weber, New Economics School, Russia
- Prof. Myrna Wooders, Vanderbilt University, USA.

The committee will review submissions and will select the papers accepted for presentation at the 24th Coalition Theory Network Conference.

